Celebrating the Life of one of READ's first Literacy Champions

"I cannot think of a better advocate for READ Ottawa and its mission than Paul McNergney," says tutor Paul Martin. Paul McNergney was one of the founding members of READ Ottawa; He was a tutor and served on READ's board from 2009-2014. He was tireless in his efforts to promote literacy for all and was relentless in spreading the word about READ and its tutors. Paul networked with the Grand Haven Rotary to bring attention to the cause of increasing adult literacy in the community.

The READ Ottawa family has been blessed by Paul's efforts and extends sympathy to his family in his passing. "The world just lost an exceptional human being," states Sherry Mitchel, fellow member of READ's original board of directors.

Entrepreneurial Endeavors

READ Ottawa learner Isela Alvarez has made her artful charcuterie boards a successful business. She now is able to run Divine Charcuterie as her main source of income. In addition, Isela recently won a $5,000 prize in a food competition that will help her build her website, among other things.

Isela is grateful to her tutor, Betty Jo Enell. "Betty Jo gives me advice on how to speak in public," reports Isela.

Raissa Porto says that her tutor, Becky Ahearne has been by her side since the beginning of her massage therapy journey. While she was born in Brazil, Raissa raised her family in Canada and has settled in West Michigan to start a new chapter.

Raissa is currently a student in Massage Therapy and her business exists under the name Mel Healing Body and Soul Clinic LLC. She is currently performing massage therapy free of charge until February. Raissa is passionate about healing the body and about the emotional and mental well-being of her clients.

When reflection on her instructors and her READ Ottawa tutor Becky says, "God has miraculous ways of bringin people together and I could not have done any of this without their support."

Aytan Suleymanova has been creating delicious desserts and beautiful pastries for her business, The Eastern Pastry. She and her tutor, Michelle McArthur, worked on her website that offers her delights.
